

WAR BETWEEN TURKS AND BRITISH HALTED

strated by the fact that Greek transports have been forbidden to use the straits from today.
It was supposed that the Greeks themselves had withdrawn the cruiser Averoff in response to the allied request, but a late dispatch reports that the crew of the Averoff mutined and sailed for Constantinople without their commander.
The Associated Press correspondent at Constantinople learns that the Kemalists are willing to accept the principle of neutrality of the straits pending the armistice conference which General Harrington proposed should be held at Mudania or Ismid. Apparently, therefore, Kemal Pasha is ready to participate in such a conference, and this implies that the position is much eased.
Battle Is Prevented
General Harrington continues to act with the utmost prudence and moderation. He prevented an imminent collision of the opposing forces in the Chanak area by a wireless request to General Shullworth to suspend an attack and, according to information available here, the government has given him complete freedom of discretion regarding a time limit, and clearly does not desire to press matters.
M. Franklin-Bouillon, the French envoy, is expected to reach Smyrna tomorrow morning and it is believed that until he has seen Kemal Pasha there will be no military move of importance. Unofficial reports assert that Kemal will declare the allied conditions for a peace conference unacceptable and insist upon the use of the straits for the transport of his troops to Thrace before consenting to enter such a conference.
Both British and Turks are concentrating large forces on the Ismid and Canakkale lines. The British fleet on the spot now consists of six dreadnaughts, seven battle cruisers and twenty destroyers, while the land forces, which are continually being increased, already amount to 30,000 men.
Premier Lloyd George motored from Chequers Court this evening to preside over a hurriedly convened meeting of the cabinet ministers to discuss events in the near east. After sitting for an hour and a half, the council adjourned until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.
The absence of any reply from Kemal Pasha, either concerning the peace conference or the withdrawal of the Turks from the Chanak zone, made it impossible to arrive at definite decisions, and the general feeling of the ministers cannot be considered optimistic. After previous instructions to General Harrington commander in chief of the forces at Constantinople were reiterated and, according to the official view, Kemal Pasha does not seem to realize that strong resistance will be made in the event of any frontal attack and that the British strength in this quarter is rapidly increasing. The latest government advice is that there has been no contact between the opposing forces in the Chanak region.
Devout Not Discussed
The Greek revolution was not discussed and there is no information as to whether the British government will recognize the crown prince if he succeeds to the throne. Much attention was devoted to the question of transporting the refugees from Smyrna, which matter is giving the government considerable concern. It will be impossible to remove them by the end of the month and Kemal Pasha will be requested to grant an extension of time.
The British government has chartered 15 ships, but they can accommodate only about 20,000 on each trip and immense difficulties will be experienced in feeding the refugees. The American commander, Rear Admiral Bristol, at Smyrna is doing his utmost to hasten their departure, but the fact that the Turks insist upon examining passports before permitting refugees to leave entails additional delay.

SHOPMEN'S OFFICERS TO DISCUSS STRIKE ISSUES AT SPARKS FRIDAY NIGHT

Expressions of confidence that agreements would be reached between the striking shopmen and railway managements were voiced last night by R. S. Roberts and C. F. Grow, representatives of the men who are protesting the deceleration of the railway labor board.
Grow is a representative of the International Association of Machinists in western states, while Roberts is grand lodge deputy of the railway carmen. Both men have addressed public and railway men's mass meetings in the west from Canada to Mexico and in many of the inter-mountain states.
Men Standing Firm
"We have met with railway organizations in all parts of the west," Mr. Roberts said last night, "and find that the men are standing firm and expect to win. There are a number of individuals, about 75, that have already signed up, while negotiations are being conducted on a number of other lines which, we believe will result in agreements being reached between managements and men."
"There are several points where a small number of men have returned to work, but we do not believe that this will have the effect of stopping the strike being carried on, because of the very bad condition of the rolling stock and equipment on all lines of the country."
Expect Early Agreement
"We are confident that within a short period of time the managements of the various lines will holding out, apparently opposed to striking elements will realize that it is to their best interest, to the interest of the public and the men on strike that an understanding and agreement should be entered into."
Both men are to speak at a public meeting in Sparks at Robinson hall tomorrow evening and discuss matters of interest concerning the strike.
Mr. Roberts explained that the meeting is not to be confined entirely to railroad men, but the public as a whole is invited.

members of the committee were favorably impressed with Col. Jim on the occasion of the opening of the state campaign at Piper's Opera house Monday night, and that they are now conducting an investigation of his record and attitude in relation to Mother Earth and the secrets which she gives up only to those of patience and fortitude, and only then when prompted by her friend, Dame Fortune.
It is well known that Colonel Scrugham, in his earlier years in Nevada, championed more than one pair of Washoe canaries into the desert, and that his name now appears on the location notices of more than one promising prospect in out-of-the-way places in Nevada.
Should he be accepted as a Hot Water Plug he will be notified to come to the Comstock and receive his initiation on the 2003-foot level, which is the hottest "what is" in these days of "grass-roots" mining.

One of the delegates, Mr. Debs' statement says, has written him to apologize for the convention's action.

"THE STORM" IS DYNAMIC FILM STORY
House Peters Stars in Screen Version of Great Stage Success
After all, a picture is essentially a story, and the plot therefore is the most important element. "The Storm" is the thing."
"The Storm," coming as a Universal-Jewel attraction, starring House Peters, to the Wigwam theater next Sunday is adapted from the New York stage sensation of the same name. Theatrical history was made by the play, written by Langdon McCormick. It is grippingly dramatic, and besides the elements of simple drama, there is woven into it the theme of two kinds of fear that men may feel toward women.
One man in the triangle of the story is afraid of women because he knows nothing of them, has never seen anything of them. He's a woodsman, primitive and honest.
The other is the product of London and Paris society. He fears the gentle sex because he's "seen too darned much of women."
The woman in the case is an innocent French-Canadian girl, forced to live with the two men for four long months through being hemmed in by a snowstorm.
On this novel situation McCormick constructed a story that holds the interest to the last by its very unusualness.
The reproduction of the snowstorm scene and the devastating forest fire establishes new records for sensationalism and thrill, even in these blasé days. Throughout the action Director Barker has maintained the element of suspense so splendidly that even the most thrill-proof movie fan is going to sit spell-bound. Nothing like it has ever before been presented, and it is easy to understand the glowing commendation heaped on picture and drama alike by the metropolitan press of the country.
Virginia Valli is the girl and Matt Moore is the Londoner, while House Peters brings his manly directness and emotionalism to bear on the starring role of the woodsman. Josef Swickard and Frank Lanning have supporting roles.

NEGRO LODGE IS GIVEN PERMISSION TO RETAIN NAME BY COURT ORDER

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 27.—Chancellor Martineau in the chancery court today refused to grant a petition for an injunction seeking to prohibit the local negro lodge of the Ancient Egyptian Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine from using a name similar to that used by the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, and emblems and badges similar to those used by the white order. The case, which was filed several months ago, is styled "Frank Neimeyer et al. vs. W. H. Smith et al." In his opinion the chancellor stated that the white order had been established in 1872 and the negro order in 1893; that the negro order had incorporated in 1901 and that a United States supreme court decision stated that after an order had been established a reasonable length of time it was unequitable to take such action against it.

THE DAILY PRESS ENTHUSIASTIC OVER "THE STORM" WHICH OPENS AT WIGWAM SUNDAY FOR FIVE DAYS
The New York World "THE STORM"
One of the greatest works of screen art of the year is "The Storm," a Universal-Jewel production, at the Capitol this week. "Peasants of thanksgiving are due Reginald Barker, director, and the three principals of the cast of all, Virginia Valli, House Peters and Matt Moore. They have produced one of the classics of the cinema.
A usually non-exuberant reviewer checks himself to guard against rapturous extravagance. Were any of the scenes underplayed or overplayed? No. Did the photography dominate the director? No, not even a furious snowstorm and a raging forest fire were given undue length. Were the titles over grandiose or mawkish or trifling? No, not once. If one were a Senegalese and this picture were being seen by him in Timbuctoo, without he be exceptional accompaniment, would he be extraordinarily moved? Yes; this is a work of fine art and it will have a vigor in any land and any time.
By her performance in "The Storm" Virginia Valli takes rank with the very first of screen actresses. House Peters as the city friend, lived their roles with the same truth that gives big life to every inch of this film.
The Capitol should be jammed to capacity all week for this picture. It merits the limits of patronage of the picture-going public. James W. Dean in the Newspaper Enterprise Association "The Storm" is coming! And when it arrives at your movie theater see it, for it is one photoplay in a thousand.
"The Storm" will sweep you up in the intensity of its drama, thrill you with its stark realism, awe you with the majesty of a vast outdoors and make your pulse drum with a lively tune in your temples with its adventurous episodes.
New York Daily News "The Storm" is uncommonly good entertainment. As a picture, simply from the technical standpoint, it's perfection. Seldom have I seen such fine photography. The ride of Manette down the rapids in a frail canoe makes you catch your breath. No faking here!
Virginia Valli does some graceful acting in the young woman who forms a pivotal center for the fiery affection of the two men. She is lovely to look at, and considerably avoids the pitfalls which seem to belong to a movie actress, playing wild, winsome heroines.
New York American The physical elements in the picture are done so well that the film is lifted above the average spectacle production.
The New York Evening Journal For splendor of scenic effects, "The Storm" must be given a high place among the season's attractions on the screen. There is an exciting view of a canoe, propelled by a girl and an old man through a wild rapid, under gunfire, that stirs one's blood to keep pace with it.
There is a blizzard, with endless tons of snow streaming in an avalanche down the mountain sides, isolating the girl and the two men in the wilderness. There is a forest fire with flames spurting high enough to lick the clouds, and the three figures fighting their way through it.
Max Times in the Chicago Daily Tribune "The Storm" from the drama by Langdon McCormick is a picture Universal may well be proud of! Carl Sandburg in the Chicago Daily News Well, sometimes they take their coats off, go to it, and make a movie. This is the case with "The Storm."
San Francisco Chronicle Mark up another red letter picture for Universal—"The Storm."
San Francisco Examiner Superb example of pictorial realism and art.
